- Made to prevent stains on valued garments
- May be expensive

- Or valued to you

Costs and Manufacturing

- Costs $7 to produce
- We sell at $23
- Therefore $16 profit per can sold
- We use a similar formula to Crep Protect

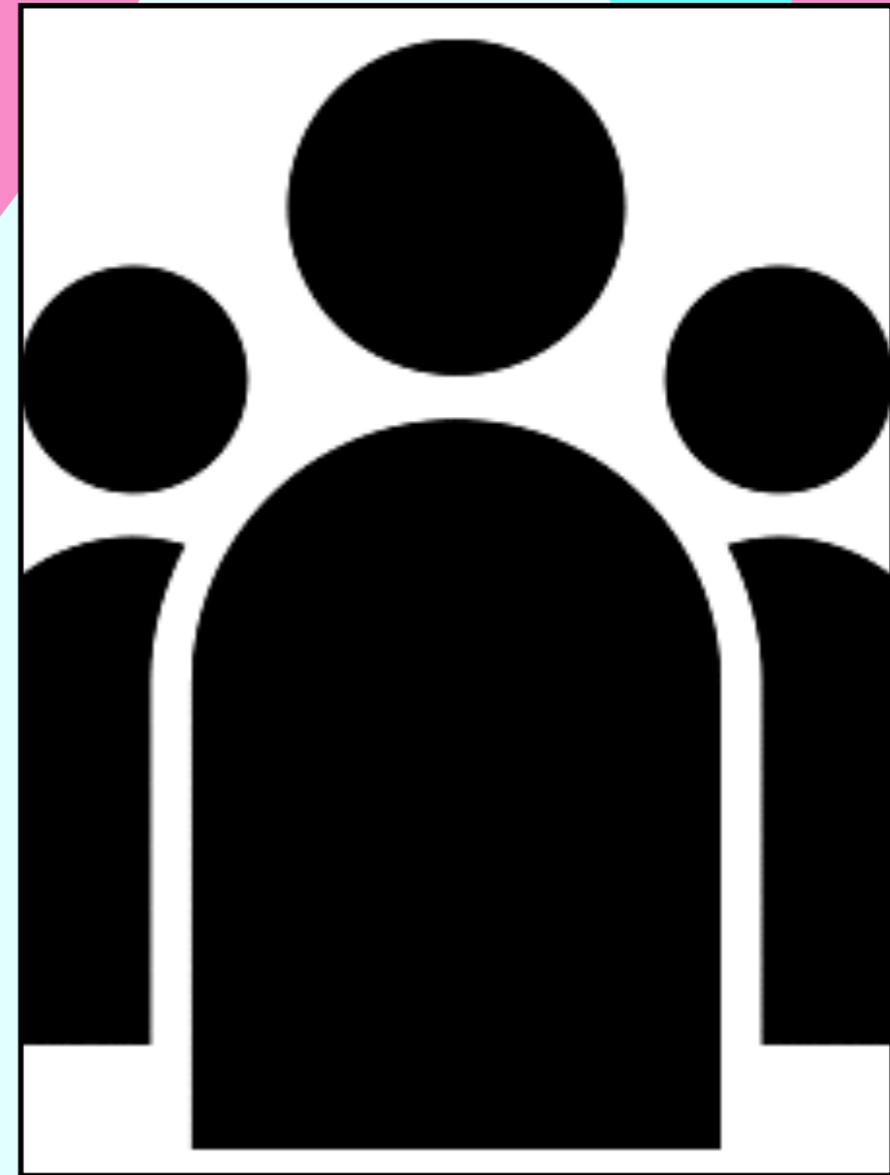

Profits

- In the past year we've sold 65,000 units
- So we've made $1,495,000 in pure sales
- Total profits equal roughly $650,000 considering labour, rent, production cost, retailer sales, etc.
- Expected profit within the next year is another expected $600,000 - $700,000

Our Target Consumers

- Our target consumers are the general public
- We see this as essential to everyone to protect their clothing
- However, does appeal more to those who value their clothing highly.

Competition (Lack Of)

- At the moment, there is lack of competition as no-one else has created a product like ours
- Only complementary products to protect sneakers/shoes.

Where We See Ourselves in the Future

- We see ourselves selling our product to the masses through a variety of large and small retailers.
- Perhaps we also see ourselves teaming with other companies like Crep Protect who have similar ideas to us.

What We Want

- We want $150,000 for 15% stake in our company
- We want this money to help with manufacturing and to help get our product into big fashion and streetwear retailers.

Why Us?

- Because of the lack of competition, this would be a good opportunity to invest in our business seeing as we'd be selling the most of this type of product.
